STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

In the Year of Our Lord Two Thousand

A RESOLUTION requesting Congress to propose an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to prevent federal courts from instructing states or political subdivisions of states to levy or increase taxes.

Whereas, separation of powers is fundamental to the United States Constitution and the power of the federal government is strictly limited; and

Whereas, under the United States Constitution, the states are to determine public policy; and

Whereas, it is the duty of the judiciary to interpret the law, not to create law; and

Whereas, our present federal government has strayed from the intent of our founding fathers and the United States Constitution through inappropriate federal mandates; and

Whereas, these mandates by way of statute, rule, or judicial decision have forced state governments to serve as the mere administrative arm of the federal government; and

Whereas, federal district courts, with the acquiescence of the United States Supreme Court, continue to order states to levy or increase taxes to comply with federal mandates; and

Whereas, these court actions violate the United States Constitution and the legislative process; and

Whereas, the time has come for the people of this great nation and their duly elected representatives in state government to reaffirm, in no certain terms, that the authority to tax under the Constitution of the United States is retained by the people who, by their consent alone, do delegate such power to tax explicitly to those duly elected representatives in the legislative branch of government whom they choose, such representatives being directly responsible and accountable to those who have elected them; and

Whereas, several states have petitioned the United States Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America; and

Whereas, the amendment was previously introduced in Congress; and

Whereas, the amendment seeks to prevent federal courts from levying or increasing taxes without representation of the people and against the peoples' wishes; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring:

That the Congress of the United States prepare and submit to the several states an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to add a new article providing as follows:

"Neither the Supreme Court nor any inferior court of the United States shall have the power to instruct or order a state or a political subdivision thereof, or an official of such a state or political subdivision, to levy or increase taxes"; and

That this application for an amendment to the Constitution is a continuing application in accordance with Article V of the Constitution of the United States; and

That the house clerk transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and each member of the New Hampshire Congressional delegation.

Rep. Lynott asked if there were any other incidents besides the Missouri case. I do not know off-hand. Our own state has been victim of our judicial activism. Our constitution prohibits the courts form directions the legislature or the executive branch to levy any tax.

Rep. Quandt stated that he has an amendment to attach to the bill. He asked permission to make that attachment. Yes, I believe each committee acts independent and can act in any matter.

Testimony

Wednesday, January 26, 2000

Testimony by Rep. Richard Noyes (Rock 26) on HCR 27

This proposal is similar to HCR 1, which was heard in 1997 by the then-House Committee on State and Federal Relations.

Some members of that committee will remember that the proposal was reported in as ITL, apparently because many of the committee members believed that, while judicial taxation is wrong, it is not an abuse which is apt to happen. Courts were thought to be better behaved.

I filed that earlier resolution in support of the efforts of legislators with whom I was familiar who served in Missouri, where the abuse of judidical taxation had proven to be an expensive problem in – for instance – St. Louis.

A group called the Madison Forum had been formed there in an effort to win support from legislators in other state . . . . motivated by the costly experience they had gone through and in hopes it could be prevented in other states.

I have attached to this testimony a copy of the words used in the Missouri House substitute for what was then being heard as Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 9.

I am sorry I cannot tell you today – because I don't have their latest head-count at hand – how many states have already joined Missouri in the effort.

We here in New Hampshire, of course, have more immediate knowledge of the abuse of standard Constitutional practice called Judicial Taxation. We know, now, that it CAN happen, because it HAS happened to us.

We know from our own experience that it can force both the legislative and the administrative branches of government into taking positions they would not otherwise have taken.

While it is now too late for us, the federal amendment it asks for and supports, could help others of our United States in time to come.

HOUSE SUBSTITUTE

FOR

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 9

WHEREAS, an amendment to the United States Constitution previously introduced in Congress, the text of which reads: "Neither the Supreme Court nor any inferior court of the United States shall have the power to instruct or order a state or political subdivision thereof, or an official of such state or political subdivision, to levy or increase taxes," seeks properly to prevent federal courts from levying or increasing taxes without representation of the people and against the people's wishes:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Senate of the Eighty-seventh General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, that the Missouri General Assembly strongly urges the Congress of the United States to pass this constitutional amendment, and that the Congress prepare and submit to the several states before January 1, 1994, this amendment to the Constitution of the United States; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that if, by January 1, 1994, the Congress has not proposed and submitted to the several states such an amendment, this body respectfully makes application to the Congress of the United States for a convention to be called under Article V of the Constitution of the United States for the specific and exclusive purpose of proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to prevent the federal judiciary from imposing taxes against the will of the people; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that effective January 1, 1994, this application constitutes a continuing application in accordance with Article V of the Constitution of the United States until the legislatures of at least two-thirds of the several states have made similar applications pursuant to Article V; but if the Congress proposes an amendment to the Constitution identical in subject matter and intent to that contained in this resolution, to wit no taxation without legislative concurrence, then this application and petition for a constitutional convention shall no longer be of any force or effect; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this body also proposes that the legislatures of each of the several states comprising the United States which have not yet made similar applications apply to the Congress requesting enactment of an appropriate amendment to the United States Constitution, and apply to the Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of proposing such an amendment to the United States Constitution; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent by the Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives to each member of the Congress representing Missouri; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives of this state be directed to send copies of this resolution to the Secretary of State and the presiding officer in each house of the legislature in each of the other states in the Union, the Clerk of the United States House of Representatives and the Secretary of the United States Senate.

Terry L. Spieler, Secretary of the Senate, and Douglas Burnett, Chief Clerk of the House, do hereby certify that the aforementioned is a true and correct copy of House Substitute for Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 9, adopted by the Senate on May 6, 1993, and concurred in by the House on May 10, 1993.
