HOUSE CALENDAR

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE:

You have all been working exceptionally hard at meeting deadlines. We successfully cleared the first hurdle by getting all of our early bills processed on time in your committees, and acting on them before our deadline last week during the House session.

There are several deadlines in March that we believe we can readjust to alleviate the need to bring the House back for a session on or before March 18th. As a result, it will make some of the reporting deadlines for your committees unnecessary in the month of March.

We want to minimize the number of times we meet in session. These changes to deadlines will allow for more time for members to receive their vaccinations (if currently eligible), more time for COVID cases in our state to continue to decline, and create a more risk-mitigated environment when we do meet next.

Pursuant to House Rule 67, after discussing the proposal with the Majority and Minority leaders, I have decided to alter the scheduled deadlines to create one deadline by which all of our remaining bills need to be reported out by committees, and one deadline by which the House would need to act on the committee reports.

April 1, 2021 Last day to report all House bills

 Last day to report list of retained House bills

April 8, 2021 CROSSOVER – Last Day to Act on all House bills

This simplification to our schedule will allow us flexibility on when we meet, and as a result, flexibility on when your committees need to report the remainder of House bills. We will still strive to process bills as quickly as we reasonably can in the event we meet later in March. (Please note that these changes are reflected in the deadlines below and on our House Rules webpage.)

We are still working on solidifying our schedule of meeting days and will keep you updated once we get confirmation with our venue. Please stay tuned as these dates will be sent by email to members as soon as they are confirmed, and announced in the next available calendar.

Members are reminded that decorum in committees and decorum during sessions is something we must take seriously, and work with each other to achieve. This week brought additional reports of behavior unbecoming of an elected official during committee proceedings. At no time is it acceptable to make outlandish statements, or create a disrespectful spectacle in our committee meetings. Our constituents deserve better.

I have renewed the Speaker's Advisory Group for this term, and have made new appointments. The group, which began under Speaker Shurtleff, is a bipartisan ad hoc committee of House members that will review incidents involving behavior of their peers. Please join me in thanking them for taking on this important duty.

The Clerk will be hosting a continuing education webinar next Friday for all members regarding parliamentary procedure, debate, and decorum. I have participated in this type of session before and I strongly encourage members to attend as they are able.

Sherman A. Packard, Speaker of the House

The House Veterans Interest Caucus invites all Representatives to associate with others interested in legislative and other issues affecting our veterans. Whether you are a veteran, or someone interested in veterans issues, you're welcome to engage your fellow Representatives in a non-partisan organization. The caucus shares information on bills effecting veterans without taking a position on them by regularly distributing a status tracker. Future events may consist of talks presented by groups such as Easter Seals, Veterans Affairs Medical Center, and Veteran Service Organizations. We have approximately 75 current associates. If interested, email jess.edwards@leg.state.nh.us with the subject line reading "VIC".
