HOUSE JOURNAL NO. 13

Thursday, May 12, 2022

The House assembled at 10:00 a.m., the hour to which it stood adjourned, and was called to order by the Speaker.

Prayer was offered by House Chaplain, Reverend Bob Stewart, Pastor of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Manchester.

Let us pray. O Gracious God, everywhere we turn, we hear or see the tensions and conflicts around the world You have created. Let us pause to understand that You not only are a God of love but that You are a God of peace. We see and hear the tensions and conflicts surrounding the many issues within our country and within the Granite State. Let us pause. Let us listen before we speak. Let us try to understand each other's point of view, even when it may differ from our own. O God, I pray for each member of this House and ask that You guide them as they strive to make effective and meaningful decisions for all people of this great State of New Hampshire. They don't have an easy job, but with Your guidance Lord, it becomes a little easier because You walk with each of them. God keep Your guiding hand on each member. Lord, I also ask that You be with all the leaders as they try to lead to the best of their ability. They, too, do not have an easy job but when we all work together in harmony, when we pause until You are done mixing, we accomplish things that bring glory and honor to Your name. Be with us through this day and Lord make this a fruitful day. Amen.

Representative Kenneth Vincent, member from Somersworth, led the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Member from Hooksett, Representative Michael Yakubovich performed our National Anthem.

REMARKS BY LECH WALESA

Speaker Packard: Our guest today has lived a life of service dedicated to serving Poland's history and leading the solidarity movement, paving the way for freedom of its people. Through his active engagement, he successfully led the first independent and oppositional social movement in the Soviet bloc. His vision of working together in an effort to oppose a communist regime gained so much popularity that martial law was introduced and talks of freedom were immediately met with force and arrests. For his determination and his courage to stand up for the rights of his fellow countrymen, he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983. Threats did not deter him. It gave him the motivation to keep going. He knew there was too much at stake and in 1989 he was the leader of the opposition delegation during roundtable talks and eventually, with determination, he led the compromise with the communist authorities. In the election of 1989, the formation of the first non-communist cabinet in the Soviet bloc came to be. In 1990, our esteemed guest was elected President of free Poland. He remained engaged with the people, supported Poland's accession to NATO and the European Union and with his ideals, changed Poland and became a country's strongest advocate on the world stage. Today he continues his life's mission by traveling the world and speaking to audiences about the peaceful transition he fostered toward peace and democracy. Through his lectures, he inspires both young and old to find common ground based on universal values and solidarity. His work is widely known and his accolades include Poland's highest order, the Order of the White Eagle, as well as the Order of the Polonia Restituta, the Medal of Freedom, numerous honorary degrees, and an honorary citizenship in 35 cities around the world. His legacy will continue on in history and has reached millions through his lectures and his foundation, the Lech Walesa Institute. This is an institute that brings together people of all social groups and nurtures them to discuss the ever-evolving political landscape, encouraging independence and freedom. It is my pleasure and privilege to welcome Lech Walesa to the General Court of New Hampshire. Welcome Mister President.

President Lech Walesa: Ladies and gentlemen, honorable members of the House and the Senate and honorable speakers, after that applause I know that a second task which we need to really implement and fulfill right now will be accomplished with your support. The previous struggle we all fought with your support and contribution brought the collapse of the Soviet Union, the collapse of the Warsaw Pact, of the Comecon, if you remember what it was. We reunited Germany and back then at that point I wanted to accomplish even more. I was actually wishing to eliminate the cause of problems that created difficulties over the centuries in the world in Europe, which means I wanted to disintegrate the former Soviet Union even further, but American politicians did not allow me to go any further. Maybe back then they were right, they were correct, however, looking at the current situation right now, as a revolutionary, I think that right now is the right moment for us to finish the task which I failed to accomplish. There is one condition for it to be successful. The United States really has to succumb to the role of the leader in the world. United States has to organize the world to carry out that struggle for the final success. As I said before, in my judgement, this is the fortunate moment for us to win the final victory and I think my generation was given by providence two major goals to accomplish. I judge that we accomplished the first part, that is eliminating unnecessary boundaries and barriers, eliminate the Soviet Union, the Warsaw Pact, that's what we accomplished. But all this was carried out in order to have a new, safe, secure and peaceful world. However, this world cannot be such as yet because we have two remnants lingering on that is Russia and China. However, the technology and technological advancement that we, as mankind, have accomplished, larger structures in which we organize ourselves, large modules so to speak. Maybe you don't observe it as clearly from your perspective of New Hampshire and the United States, but if you look at Europe, you have to realize that there are so many separate countries within it. When our forefathers invented flight, when they could move faster around, they created out of the villages, countries and states. Whereas now, our technological advancement really forces us to realize that a single country is not big enough. We need to create larger structures. In order to integrate us into those bigger structures throughout the world, we need a world leader. Back during the times of our struggle, things seemed clear cut. There was an evil empire and there was a good empire. When the evil empire is no longer there, the United States is faced with a need to redefine its role and its tasks. I believe in my view this new era still requires us to find answers to three most important questions and I believe it's under the American leadership that we can do it. What should serve as the foundations for us integrating at this new era and right now the whole world is trying to find the answer to it. When I raise the issue of the foundations, I hear in response two different answers. Half of the world claim that it's enough to base ourselves on freedoms and liberties, free market economy and legislation. They say it would be a good backbone for the future. Whereas the remaining half claim that this will not lead us anywhere. They claim that instead we should reach a consensus on the values that we can all share and under which we can all establish things. I refer to those shared values as a kind of secular ten commandments. Only then can we introduce a free-market economy and appropriate legislation. For the moment we cannot really overcome this debate and decide which way to go. However, if we do find the answer to this first question, the second one will appear. What should be the economic system applicable and actually appropriate for the new era and the new order in the world. Suddenly communism, as such, is out of question and I'm not claiming now that it was either bad or good as an economic system, but simply it has proven totally ineffective throughout the world. Mankind has no time for further experiments so communism is out. Certainly if someone would like to say that maybe capitalism is the response, I think that capitalism which we observe in today's world, is not perfect either. It proved effective when we were confined to our respective countries, states, antagonistic blocks, then it was effective. I've heard it referred to as a rat's race, one country, one state's trying to out chase the other and that capitalist system allowed for people who could not keep the pace with the others, to become jobless. So bearing this in mind, I think that if we want to have the answer to my second question, out of the capitalist system we need to retain the free market economy, whereas all its other elements have to be redefined. We need to find the jobless people, all of them. Give them work and make them work hard now. The third question that arises is, how to handle populism and demagoguery and politicians who cheat in the majority. Bearing in mind another fact, that until the end of the 20th century, formally or more formally or less formally, all societies believed in a God and many societies have rejected God as such now. Until the end of the 20th century we were scared of communism and of the Soviet Union. These are no longer in place. Hence the open question, what can serve as the self-control for society members when they fear no God and they fear nothing else? To briefly summarize it, the interest in terms of respective countries, states, is no longer valid. We need to re-adjust our perspective to larger structures. Readjust our thinking to the perspective of this new era of information intellect and globalization. As a generation we are found in between the two eras. One has collapsed and the other one has not taken its final shape yet. If we look at all the world's organizations, all the systems, all the political parties, for example, they are totally unfit to serve the new era. You can see it even better on the example of Europe. Where you can very clearly see that left-wing parties are much more rightest than the rightest parties and vice versa. It is ridiculous to look at Christian parties. You will hardly find a single believer being a member of a Christian, so to say, party. So, we cannot allow for such a situation to continue and I believe there is only one aspect in our life worldwide that has been proven effective. That is traffic regulations. Whereas everything else throughout the world resembles a situation where we want to drive, but there are no traffic regulations. So, here I am begging you on my knees. We need to restore the leadership position of the United States in the world. The providence has given you such a strong potential and you can really be the leader to the world. If by any chance you are very, very unwilling to continue being the leader, share your potential with Poland and we will try to put it to good use. If we are successful in the second part of our task, they will say of us in the future that not only that they demolished the old order in the world, but they also constructed a good one. The demolishing of the old order was led by Poland. Obviously, Poland was greatly assisted by the United States and many other people and we played that role very effectively simply because we had been playing through our history in struggles and in fighting, quite simply because of our geographic location. We are located between two powerful peoples, the Russians and the Germans. We enjoy military socializing as you may remember so they would visit and revisit one another. Years back when there were no planes and they would result to horse driven carriages, they would always need to take the shortest way across Poland. You were free to construct your wonderful country, your wonderful United States of America doing business. Meanwhile we had to stay alert all the time, occasionally even forced to flee our homeland. There was in a way an advantage to that location because people living there and experiencing this learned how to anticipate future developments and quick judgement of the situation. Maybe some senior citizens can still remember that before the outbreak of the Second World War, Poles were trying to warn the world that the war was imminent. What did we hear in response? The world said who cares, we are not going to die for dancing. We were trying to warn the world at the end of the Second World War, claiming that Stalin was going to cheat on the world, that he was going to install the communist regime throughout half of the world and that's exactly, unfortunately, what was true because we ended up in the zone of influence of the Soviets. Meanwhile, now I think we have this opportunity to put the final end to the old order in the world. I guess you know some Polish people, maybe you've met them. You may know that Polish people are very proud. They love freedom and they are very democratic. When two Polish people meet, they will establish at least three political parties between the two and with the communist regime, we were forced to comply with one political party only. So, this is my plea. Under your leadership, American leadership, we can really improve this world. For the time being, obviously, we need to focus on the day-to-day assistance to Ukraine. People in Ukraine are murdered, killed, starved and chased away from homes. Poland has embraced over 3 million Ukrainian refugees, mostly women with children. That is obviously what we have to continue doing and it's the obvious thing for us to do and the world to be helping us, but then the second part of our activities should be all the efforts to give the final blow to the current state of the Russian regime. Even if we defeat Russia militarily today, in five to ten years from now, a new Putin will rise. Quite naturally, because Russia in today's format, is far too large a country and on top of it, with a bad regime, that's terrible. So, the second strategy is that under the leadership of the United States and the guidance of the United Nations, we need to force a new political system to be introduced in Russia. We must not allow for a single individual, a madman, threatening the rest of the world. It's the system that they have introduced in Russia that allows for that. In case this strategy fails, I have an alternative one. Russia is currently composed of about 60 different peoples, like the Ukrainians. Former republics that over the centuries have been absorbed into Russia, the Soviet Union along the way and have been crucified so I believe this alternative strategy may consist in awakening those people, motivating them to oppose Russia and to make them want to break free away from Russia. What I think we want to do is not against Russia or the Russian people. On the contrary, Russia and the Russian people will be grateful to us because they, too, have been giving lives unnecessarily for the centuries because of the bad regimes. Instead, Russia can be such a beautiful country, but not bigger than having 50 million inhabitants. So, I think we are now standing the chance of giving this final blow and let us get down to work in order to pull the right triggers. Thank you.

MOTION TO PRINT REMARKS

Rep. Weber moved that the remarks made by the Speaker regarding the member from Windham, the Honorable Mary Griffin, be printed in the Permanent Journal.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

REMARKS

Speaker Packard: One of our long-term colleagues is not doing too well unfortunately. So I'm going to take a minute here and talk about our dear colleague, Mary Griffin, a little bit. Rep. Mary Griffin holds the distinction of being the eldest member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives which is a fitting tribute to her as she celebrates her birthday. She is currently serving in her 13th term. She has been serving her constituents in the State of New Hampshire for 26 years. She is an esteemed member of the Ways and Means Committee. She served as legal secretary and court clerk for the Town of Windham. She was also Miss Senior New Hampshire in 1993 and a top 10 finalist for Miss Senior America 1993. She was active in the Windham senior center and hosted her own cable TV talk show, "Windham Watch." She served as supervisor of the checklist in Windham. She was a former vocalist and gold medal tap dancer and she has graced this chamber with her rendition of the National Anthem on many occasions. She and her late husband, Andrew Griffin, were instrumental in construction of Griffin Park, formerly known as Terra Farm. It is now a lasting legacy in a place that Windham families and residents can enjoy. The lasting impacts of her friendship, leadership and unwavering dedication to the community of Windham and the State of New Hampshire are felt by all. Congratulations on the distinction for your exemplary public service. I hope everybody keeps Mary Griffin in their prayers.

MOTION TO PRINT DEBATE

Rep. Stavis moved that the debate on HB 1022, permitting pharmacists to dispense the drug Ivermectin by means of a standing order and establishing a commission to study the use of Ivermectin to treat Covid-19, be printed in the Permanent Journal.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

Objection was made.

On a division vote, with 173 members having voted in the affirmative, and 132 in the negative, the motion was adopted.

DEBATE ON HB 1022

Representative Knirk: Thank you, Mister Speaker. I rise to oppose the motion to concur. We should not legislate the practice of medicine, especially when it contradicts the best available medical evidence. Permitting a pharmacist to dispense a medication by a standing order requires a well evaluated protocol established through a broad consensus of providers and pharmacists using the best available data. But a broad consensus in the use of ivermectin in Covid does not exist. You've heard the claims that over 100 studies have shown ivermectin to be useful and helpful in reducing the severity and duration of Covid-19, but this is not true. There have been numerous studies regarding ivermectin in Covid-19 which sound...

Speaker Steven Smith: Could the member suspend? I'm right here and I'm having trouble hearing him. Can we quiet it down and take conversations outside please? Please continue.

Representative Knirk: Thank you, Mister Speaker. Which sound compelling, but on analysis have design flaws. There too small sample sizes, there's no blinding, no randomization and various medications confound the assessment and even the well-designed studies have significant limitations so the bottom line is there are no definite conclusions regarding the efficacy of use of ivermectin in treating Covid-19. We should confine it to just studies that are being done. The bottom line is that high quality medication efficacy studies have to be randomized, double blinded and placebo controlled. Only a few studies meet those high criteria and those do not support the use of ivermectin for the treatment or prevention of Covid-19, outside of well-designed studies. So when I testified in the other body against this bill, I was asked a question about what's the harm in just going ahead and passing this bill and doing it? The issue is pretty straight forward. If you allow a standing order for ivermectin, it implies that it is effective. That will divert people from other truly proven treatments which can treat the disease or even well proven vaccination which can decrease the risk of serious disease. So what the Senate did to this bill is they amended it to have it sunset July 1, 2024, the standing order authorization would sunset, and created a commission to study the efficacy of ivermectin in treating Covid in order to make a recommendation as to whether the authorization should be made permanent. That's totally backwards. It is inappropriate to legislatively pretend that there is a consensus and then evaluate to see if one exists. If it is determined by high quality studies that ivermectin has a place in treating Covid-19, you can bet that at some point it will become commonly prescribed without this bill. Again, we should not legislate the practice of medicine and we don't legislate scientific evidence. In summary, standing orders for pharmacists should not be used to dispense medications for indications that are not clearly supported by the best available medical evidence and ivermectin does not reach that level of evidence. The senate's attempt to compromise on the lack of evidence is not good and we should not concur so we can let this bill die and let high quality research guide the practice of medicine. So please press red to vote no on the motion to concur and I request a division vote, sir.

Speaker Steven Smith: Rep. Mark Pearson is recognized to speak in support of the motion.

Representative Mark Pearson: Thank you, Mister Speaker. The Senate added some more amendments than the ones just mentioned. The standing order shall not be used for one who is pregnant. The standing order shall not be used for one who is under 18. The person receiving ivermectin through a standing order shall sign an informed consent statement stating there is no proven benefit to treating Covid-19 with ivermectin. The study commission has already been mentioned. The sunset provision is 2024, July 1st and I don't know anybody who wants to use ivermectin for Covid who is doing it and they do it because they don't want to get vaccinated. So it's not drawing people away from something they are not going to do anyway and isn't it better to do it this way than get ivermectin from veterinarian supply houses? Therefore, I ask you please to concur.

Speaker Steven Smith: The question is on the motion to concur. Rep. Tony Lekas has requested a roll call. Is that sufficiently seconded? This will be a roll call vote. Members please take your seats. The question is on the motion to concur. The House will come to order. Rep. Knirk is recognized for a parliamentary inquiry.

Representative Knirk: Thank you, Mister Speaker. If I know that in the interest of time, I did not review all of the other modifications made by the Senate as they do not neutralize the flawed premise. And if I know the best available evidence simply does not support the use of ivermectin in Covid-19. And if I know that legislation must be informed by the best available evidence, not poor studies and wishful thinking. And if I know that it is backwards to approve a treatment and then look at the evidence. And if I know, lastly, that we should not legislate the practice of medicine, would I then press the red button to vote no on the motion to concur so another motion could be brought forward? Thank you.

Speaker Steven Smith: Rep. Mark Pearson is recognized for a parliamentary inquiry.

Representative Mark Pearson: Thank you, Mister Speaker. If I know there is far more dangerous stuff available over the counter now. Names supplied upon request later. And if I know this use is not versus getting vaccinations, but it is instead of getting ivermectin from farm supply stores, would I not vote yes by pushing the green button?

Speaker Steven Smith: The question is on the motion to concur. This is a roll call vote. If you are in favor, press the green button. If you are opposed, press the red button. Voting stations are open for 30 seconds. Have all members present had the opportunity to vote? The House will attend to the state of the vote. 157 in the affirmative, 148 in the negative, the motion is adopted.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

Representative Roy: Thank you, colleagues. I promise to take as little of your time as I can on this beautiful day. Today we are taking unanimous consent in recognition of homeless veterans within our state. We, as a body, have had a tough time coming together on a lot of things, but one thing we have always come together on is taking care of our veterans. Two years ago when we were in the Democrat majority, I introduced a bill to assist disabled veterans with their children for school and that passed. This year in the Republican majority we improved that bill and it passed. We work together when we take care of our veterans. Homelessness, in general, is an embarrassment to our society. Homelessness to veterans is even more so and I will explain why. Earlier, when we had the privilege of hearing Lech Walesa speak, it brought back a lot of memories for me. I was stationed in West Germany when he was actually going through his troubles at the time. As I recall, the Soviet military at the time, scrambled to try and crush the rebellion that was going on in Poland and we in response to that also had to scramble and we had numerous alerts. At 3:00 in the morning we would be called to the border and get down there with our tanks just in case they crossed and it brought back a lot of good memories too. In New Hampshire we have almost 100,000 veterans. That's a lot for the size of our state. We are 8th in the United States for the number of veterans per capita. We are a patriotic and serving state and we owe a debt of gratitude to those folks and I'll explain why. Every veteran when they sign up for the military, they run a check. It's payable to each and every one of you and that check is blank and its payable with their life. Now, many of them, most of them thankfully, don't every have to have that check cashed. At the end of this month we will be celebrating Memorial Day. That's for the folks whose check we cashed. The rest of us, I don't know about you, you ever pay a bill and you write a check and somebody just doesn't cash it and it drives you nuts because you have to keep carrying that over in your ledger every month? Well, the veterans that we have out there now, those checks are still out there and we have no way of paying it back. I don't know what someone's life is worth and I don't want to try and put a value on it. For the homeless veterans, there is a lot more we could do. There are numerous programs to help them. The problem is a lot of them come back from service and they are damaged. They have mental illness, physical illnesses and it's hard to get in touch and figure ways to help when no one knows how to reach you and you don't know to reach anybody else. Military teaches us to operate as a team. When you get out of the military you lose that team. You are on your own. It's very difficult for some, especially in combat arms whose training was solely on how to kill the enemy, to fit back in to society and find a useful way to contribute and be a member. A lot of times they end up on the outskirts of our society and it's our job to reach in and find them, not for them to find us. So, right now, we know of at least 120 homeless veterans in this state. That's 120 people that are sleeping outside. Now, a lot of people forget about the homeless when the weather gets nice like this, but it has a lot more to do than just the weather. Imagine not having a place to sleep, not having a phone, not having someone to help you with your doctors' appointments, your medication, your food. There are a lot of things that go along with that roof. So, on this Memorial Day and in this month, which is military recognition of veterans this month, keep it in mind every time you pass a homeless person. First of all, we need to help all the homeless, but they could be a veteran and they still have that check outstanding that we need to fulfill. In closing I would just also like to ask everyone while you are keeping the veterans in mind and keeping the homeless in mind, and we work together, I commit next session that if God willing, I'm here, I'm happy to co-sponsor with anyone from any party any legislation to help the veterans. In the meantime, if you can afford it, think about donating some formula to your local shelter because there are babies that are running out of food right now. With that I'd like to turn it over to my esteemed former Speaker of the House, Rep. Shurtleff.

Representative Shurtleff: Walking across the bridge and standing briefly at the Speaker's podium, reminded me that I've almost gone two years now in this session without one saying let me tell you a story. So let me tell you a story. In June of 1815 Wellington defeated Napoleon at the Battle of Waterloo, and the Duke of Wellington and the men who fought under him at Waterloo became national heroes in England. The British government had a medal struck. It was the Waterloo Memorial Medal. It was given to every man that fought in that battle. It was a silver medal with blue and red ribbon attached to it and it was a victory medal. They tell the story about an old man, a homeless man, in the 1840's in London who was arrested by the London police for being a vagrant. They took him to the Old Bailey to appear before a magistrate. The magistrate in his black robe and his peruke wig looked down, literally and figuratively and says to the man standing before him in these rags and he said in somewhat of a disgusted voice. He said to this man, "Can you give me any reason why I should not sentence you to the work house?" The old man reached into the lining of his torn jacket and he grabbed this piece of tarnished silver medal with some red and blue threads hanging from it. The old man is standing a little taller and with a deep and resounding voice held out his Waterloo Victory Medal. No matter how tough life had been to that old man, no matter how much he suffered, the one thing he would never part with was his Waterloo Victory Medal. It meant more to him than life itself. He said to the magistrate, "Your worship I have but one thing to say. I was with Wellington at Waterloo." With that, the magistrate teared up and banged his gavel and said, "The charges against this man are dismissed." I think about that story and realize that in the past almost two hundred years, conditions for our veterans, our homeless and those being challenged haven't changed all that much. So, this month we celebrate the celebration of our members of the armed forces. I hope us in the Granite State, as we have done for so many worthwhile causes, will now again this year stand up and help our brothers and sisters who are homeless and facing other challenges, many with mental illness, and some of that mental illness would not have happened to them if not for their experience in the armed forces. So, let us celebrate this month, celebrate our men and women, but most of all, keep in our hearts our brothers and sisters who have stood up for us and served our country and do all we can for them. Thank you, Mister Speaker.

INTRODUCTION OF SPECIAL GUESTS

Major General Mikolaities, Deputy Adjutant General Warren Perry and staff members of the Division of Community Based Military Programs who work on programs to end veteran homelessness in New Hampshire as well as representatives of several veterans' organizations.

REMARKS

Representative Tanner: Thank you, Mister Speaker. Something very important happened last weekend and I wanted to talk about it. A small rural town, Croydon, New Hampshire in my district that has retained the traditional town and school meeting format since 1793, which tends to be the New England tradition of pure democracy, one person, one vote. This year they had their meeting scheduled on a Saturday in April and I'm sure most of you will remember that Saturday. It was the day we had an unusual April snowstorm. It was like a heavy squall that lasted from about 9:00 in the morning until noon. They only had 34 citizens show up to that school meeting. They braved the weather and came to the school meeting to vote on the budget. It was a perfect storm for an unexpected and very unpopular motion to be made that cut that school budget by 50%. The motion passed with a vote of 20 to 14. As word spread, many residents, especially the parents of Croydon students, many of whom were not at the meeting, were very shocked and angry. The new budget would not support tuition payments for their children to attend the nearby local school. The school was pushing an online micro-school and homeschooling.

Speaker Packard: The member needs to suspend. Who withdrew consent? A roll call has been requested. Is that sufficiently seconded. This will be a roll call vote. The motion before us is to withdraw consent and shall the member continue speaking. This is a roll call vote. If you are in favor, you'll press the green button. If you are opposed, you'll press the red button. Voting stations are open for 30 seconds. Have all members present had an opportunity to vote? The House will attend to the state of the vote. 206 voting Yea, 52 voting Nay, the member will continue.

Representative Tanner: Thank you, Mister Speaker and thank you to the body for voting to allow this to go on. So, the vote cut the school budget by 50% and the school board was pushing online micro-schools and homeschooling. If the parents wanted their child to go to the public school, they would have to pay thousands of dollars. In the meantime, members of the town minority group included their elected officials who proposed the cut, celebrated their victory of dismantling public education. The town's people found in statute one chance to reverse the drastic cut to the school budget. It was a high bar. At least 50% of the town's registered voters had to attend a special meeting and vote on the original budget. They needed to organize, educate and reach out to voters about their shared goals and values for educating their youth. They needed to let the residents of the town know that not all their fellow citizens or elected officials shared their commitment to the community and education of their children. The law required that 283 people, 50% of the registered voters, had to show up at that special meeting and a majority had to support the budget. I had the privilege this last Saturday to see democracy in action. Typically the meetings in Croydon draw only about 10% of the registered voters. On May 7, even without a snowstorm, on May 7, the date for the special meeting, 60% of them showed up. I watched 379 people file into the largest hall they could find in the community which was a camp dining hall and I saw them very organized and getting their ballots. I heard parents, students talking about standing up and fighting back against those trying to change their community. They talked about how Covid had affected their children by isolating them from the interaction in classrooms with teachers and the many problems they had online learning, including getting and keeping Internet connection. It's very rural. A young man talked about how his parents were both working parents and didn't have the money to send him to the public school as he had been looking forward to his senior year. He looked forward to working with his teachers and completing his welding program at the CTE. He said getting dressed to the nines to the prom, experiencing that final year with his friends, participating in sports and co-curricular activities, having a formal graduation, getting ready for a career or college and having the shared experience that the generations before him had the privilege of having. Then came the vote, 377-2. It was followed by the celebration of those who had worked so hard. It is a wake-up call for all of us in New Hampshire to show up, get involved, debate the issues, know your candidates that will represent you, not their ideological positions and then vote. Political decision should represent the consent of the governed, not the power of a few. If you want to keep our state, our country, our democracy, we need to stand up for our local, state and federal government. The future of our community, our public schools, our state is hanging at a tipping point. Please use your voice and your vote and keep our democracy. Thank you.
