Rep. Osborne moved that the House adjourn.
Motion was adopted.

HOUSE JOURNAL NO. 17

Thursday, June 12, 2025

The House assembled at 10:00 a.m., the hour to which it stood adjourned, and was called to order by the Speaker.

Prayer was offered by House Chaplain, Reverend Jonathan Hopkins, Pastor at Concordia Lutheran Church in Concord.

From the prayer at the inauguration of Ronald Reagan in 1980, and a prayer by Reagan for the National Day of Prayer in 1981.

Gracious God, we need You today, maybe as never before. We have not lived up to our personal or national potential. We have seen our world from our own selfish, parochial point of view. We have lived as though everything depended upon us. We confess our sin and seek Your forgiveness. We also pray for all others who are in positions of leadership in New Hampshire and the United States. May they measure well the shortness of time, and the length of eternity. May they see all people and things and nations from Your point of view. And so in this moment, our hearts beat with a cadence of pride in our country and hope in its future. Throughout our history, America has been a symbol of hope for all people. We must always accept the many responsibilities that this requires. Thus, we are prepared to assist other nations in their struggle for economic progress, to help those in other lands who suffer from political repression and injustice, to deter aggression by strengthening democracy around the globe, and to work tirelessly toward a world without war. Those who have sacrificed their lives for our country serve as a reminder that our work is unfinished. With vision and purpose and a prayer in our hearts, let us dedicate ourselves to their memory. Help us to stand proudly as American citizens and face every challenge with a confidence born of Your spirit and humbly touched by Your love and grace. So to this end we commit ourselves and to this end we pray. Amen.

Representative Katy Peternel, member from Wolfeboro, led the Pledge of Allegiance.

The National Anthem was sung by Kurtis Sheffer of Brookfield.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Rep. Notter requested Unanimous Consent of the House regarding D-Day and addressed the House.

MOTION TO PRINT REMARKS

Rep. Sweeney moved that the remarks made by Rep. Notter during Unanimous Consent be printed in the Permanent Journal.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

Representative Notter: Thank you, Mister Speaker. Last Friday was June 6th, the anniversary of D-Day. On that day in 1944, the Allied troops stormed the beaches at Normandy. It was a day that marked the beginning of the end of World War II in the European Theater. The world was waiting for this big invasion. Around 7,000 ships were launched for Operation Overlord. The Americans landed at the beaches given the code name Utah and Omaha, while the British and Canadians landed at Gold, Juno and Sword. The enemy had the higher ground, well protected in cement fortifications. The beaches were heavily mined. Barbed wire and other obstacles were in place to impede our forces. Men were easily shot down from the enemy perched above them until the water and sand were saturated with the blood of our troops. The loss of life was staggering. Many of the allies never even made it to shore. They drowned as soon as they stepped off the landing boat, dragged down by the weight of their gear. The men of the greatest generation persisted. Their courage was beyond measure. Bad Asses. Sergeant Noel Dube, who lived in Rollinsford, New Hampshire for many years before settling in Pepperell, Massachusetts, was among them. He was part of the 29th Infantry Division. He said that they had boarded the landing ship tank, or LST, and were fully loaded and ready to go on June 2. Bad weather postponed the invasion. My dad once told me that there's no such thing as an atheist in a fox-hole. I don't know if the same held true for those in the landing craft on D-Day, but I do know that Sergeant Dube believed in the power of prayer, and he did not lose a single man that day. These are his words, "On the morning of June 4, a Catholic Army chaplain came on board and prayed with the troops and gave us his blessing. This was the sign to me that this was not going to be another dry run, this was it, the big one we had been training for two and a half years. I never said so many Rosaries and Acts of Contrition in all my life. I prayed for the safety of my squad at all times and never just for myself. Couldn't see all this training only to drown before amounting to anything. I was standing along the rail praying as hard as I'd ever prayed before when all of a sudden, I saw a ship passing us going in the opposite direction. Only the next morning did I learn that the invasion was postponed because of bad weather. We started out again on the night of June 5. This time it was for real. As dawn approached, we could see the beach wall and the church steeple, our landmark for D-Day. My mission for the Ninth Squad was to bypass the wall, go up to the Vierville Draw to the intersection at the top of the hill and sweep the field with our mine detectors. As we were about to land, we pulled alongside a landing craft that was sinking. The men aboard were yelling to us to back off. Our coxswain was finally able to reverse our craft, and we came ashore about a mile to the left of our landing place at Omaha. Our craft beached. The only one that I know of that allowed the troops to walk off onto the pebbles without getting our shoes wet, but it took my squad almost a day to get back to where the Vierville Draw was located. At high tide it was very difficult to walk on the beach without walking over dead bodies." Sergeant Dube told me a lot about D-Day when he was on my public access show back in October of 2006. I asked him what the D stands for and he said nothing, it's just the letter they used to designate the invasion. Some of you may have seen the movie The Longest Day. You may recall the scene where they blew the wall. The soldier who performed that task was Sergeant Noel Dube. These are his words again, "When I arrived at the wall with my Ninth Squad about 5:00 p.m., the B-Commander ordered me to take some of my men and reconnoiter beyond the wall and prepare to blow it. We discovered that it was not a single, but a double wall and we knew that we would have to take it out one wall at a time with 10 cases of TNT for each wall. We detonated the charges and when everything had cleared, we could see that the explosion had made a hole in both walls. Now the bulldozer operators moved up, filled in the anti-tank ditch in front of the wall and widened the holes in the wall to allow the vehicles on the beach to drive through and up the Vierville Draw to support our troops. For this action I was awarded a Bronze Star." On my show, we also chatted about the days that followed. One of his assignments was to diffuse bombs. He was doing just that one cold day when he noticed a wounded soldier nearby was shivering. Sergeant Dube gave the man his coat. Now he was shivering, which made him want to continue his job in haste. He told me, "I sat back on my haunches and then I blew myself up." His injuries included the loss of one of his legs and the sight in one of his eyes. This did not, however, dissuade the cute gal he had met at the USO who had become his pen pal and then his wife. They had a dozen children together and stayed together until his death in 2010. I first met Sergeant Dube in 2003, 59 years after D-Day. He was a senior citizen, obviously. I knew that in addition to the Purple Heart, he was decorated with a Silver Star and two Bronze Stars. At the time, when I thought of his time in the service, I pictured a somewhat younger man, strong and robust. Now 22 years after I met him, I fully realize just how young he was on D-Day. He was 24, 24, and yet he was the leader in the boat that day praying over his charges. The power of prayer is something I heard him say often. It's what got him through D-Day. It's what got him through the war and it's what got him through life. I've never traveled to Normandy, but the Speaker of the House has been there, and he saw the sands which was once carpeted with the bodies of our troops, and he's seen the sea of crosses that mark the spot where they have been laid to rest. So when we think of D-Day, may we never forget the brave men like Sergeant Noel Dube and the heroes who gave all. May their memories be eternal.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Rep. Foss requested Unanimous Consent of the House regarding Pride Month and addressed the House.

MOTION TO PRINT REMARKS

Rep. Weber moved that the remarks made by Rep. Foss during Unanimous Consent be printed in the Permanent Journal.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

Representative Foss: Thank you, Mister Speaker. This isn't about golf or cookies. I would like to wish my colleagues a happy Pride. I'm prepared for any negative responses this might provoke, ranging the gamut from hackney tweets about the LGBTQ XYZ community to actual revulsion. I'm not up here to try and change those minds. The past few months have seen too many instances of queer people asking for recognition of our humanity. If anyone is as upset by me standing up to talk about how much I love being part of the queer community, then I won't keep them any longer and I wish them a pleasant weekend. What I'm up here to talk about is what Pride means to me. While I consider myself proud of many other aspects of my identity, like my ancestry or my family, that pride is a passive thing. The pride that I feel when I look at the bisexual Pride flag hanging in my window isn't just because of an accident of birth. I'm proud because being a member of my community requires active pride and active courage. Some may wonder why there isn't a heterosexual Pride month. I'll first point out that there's nothing preventing straight people from celebrating their orientation. Go on a date, tell your partner you love them, get back on Bumble. No one is stopping you. But the heterosexual experience is fundamentally different from mine. Straight people don't have to do research before they apply for a job to make sure the workplace will be accepting of them. They don't have to feel out a new acquaintance to try and determine if they can refer to a past or current significant other by their first name. They've never had to worry about facing harassment or violence for kissing someone in public or holding hands or going to a certain bar. I go to the New Hampshire Irish Festival in Manchester every year and I'm never worried that someone will bring a gun and start firing because they hate Irish Americans. My biggest concern there is whether I have time to get a Jameson and ginger and get back to my seat before the next act starts. I know that's a stereotype, but I am who I am. Every one of the above has happened to me, most within the past month. I've experienced worse fear and discrimination as a queer person, but these are the things that are part of my everyday life. They may seem trivial, but they're so common that I've mostly stopped noticing the stress that they bring. My existence has been politicized. I'm keenly aware of the fact that people like me have been beaten or murdered because of their identity and it isn't unthinkable that I could be too. When I was 12 and I realized that I had developed a crush on a girl at summer camp, I didn't just feel the butterflies that come with adolescent infatuation. I sat in my childhood bedroom filled with dread because I knew things would never be the same. I don't feel that dread anymore. I feel pride because 16 years after that crush, seven years ago this week as a matter of fact, I finally got over my fear and I came out to my family. I know that being out means I'll face hatred, scorn and discrimination but I still choose to hang the bisexual Pride flag in my window, to kiss the girl I'm on a date with after she walks me to my car, to stand up in front of 400 people and anyone watching on YouTube and open myself to mockery, disgust and harassment. As far as I knew, when I decided to run for this seat, I could end up walking into a building every week where someone on the other side of the wall told a major newspaper that people like me are an abomination. That takes courage and I dare anyone to say it doesn't. Be sure to tag me in your tweets so I'll know. The important thing to me is to be proud of the courage and strength to live my authentic life. I love being part of the queer community. My orientation wasn't a choice, but if given the option, I wouldn't change anything. I was 28 when I first had the words 'happy Pride' directed at me and I was so flooded with joy and belonging that I cried. To be a queer person is to have to muster the courage to find that joy and live our lives despite the challenges we face. Why wouldn't I be proud of that? I know that it isn't easy to find that pride and I know that not everyone is as lucky as I am to have a family, some members of which are watching right now who are also proud of that person. To anyone who hasn't found their pride yet, please know that I'm proud of you. I hope that someday I'll see you at a Pride festival and that you'll feel the same joy that I felt six years ago because that joy, that's pride. Thank you.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Rep. Horrigan requested Unanimous Consent of the House regarding the federal budget and addressed the House.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Rep. Bay requested Unanimous Consent of the House regarding being a Philipino-American and addressed the House.

MOTION TO PRINT REMARKS

Rep. Nicholas Germana moved that the remarks made by Rep. Bay during Unanimous Consent be printed in the Permanent Journal.

Without objection, the Speaker ordered.

REMARKS

Representative Bay: Mister Speaker, Honorable colleagues, fellow citizens of New Hampshire and my sister in the gallery, I rise today, not just as a legislator, not just as a resident of our great state, but as someone who claims this nation and this work with full weight of belonging. I am Luz Bay. I serve proudly in this Chamber, and I call New Hampshire my home. Exactly a week ago, I spoke at this very podium about the Independence Day celebration of my home country, the Philippines. Shortly after my speech, I was asked how someone who calls the Philippines my home country is allowed to serve in this House. I want to respond, not just for myself, but for the thousands of immigrants, new Americans and children of immigrants who contribute every day to the strength of this state and this country. Let me say it clearly. I am here because I belong here. My constituents in Strafford County, District 21, elected me under the same laws, with the same legitimacy as anyone in this room. My birthplace does not make me less American. My accent does not disqualify me from public service and my identity as Filipino American does not make me a guest. I am a citizen. I am a public servant, and I am home. Let us also remember something fundamental. Unless you are indigenous to this land, unless your ancestors walked here before borders, before colonization, before the concept of immigration even existed, you too are descended from immigrants. Some of our families came centuries ago, others came fleeing war, poverty, persecution or simply searching for the promise that America holds. My story is part of that American story. It is not a footnote. It is a verse in the song of this nation. To question my right to be here is to misunderstand what makes America what it is, a place where democracy is enriched by diversity. Where freedom means the opportunity to serve and where strength lies in our shared commitment to justice, not in the sameness of our origins. I represent my district with pride. I serve this state with integrity, and I stand in this Chamber with the full rights and responsibilities that come with my being an American. This is my home. This is my country and I'm not going anywhere. Thank you, Mister Speaker.
